Financial Literacy:

Financial literacy is focused on making sure citizens are informed consumers and individuals, small businesses, and organizations contribute to the economic vitality of their community through innovation, entrepreneurship, and economic development.

Financial Literacy by the Numbers:

Right now, three-quarters of the fastest-growing occupations require more than a high-school diploma. Thousands of Pennsylvanians contact the Attorney General's office each year about credit card charges, finance scams, and misleading solicitations. In a knowledge-based economy, the demand for a highly skilled and educated workforce has never been greater.

How our Library supports Financial Literacy:

- Adult Programming - Past programming has included Social Security and Estate Planning programs. Upcoming program Maximizing your Paycheck.
- Databases - Continuing education courses available through Universal Class. Power Library Databases including Business Source Main Edition and Pennsylvania Job Resources.
- Collection - Print materials addressing a wide range of financial related topics including personal finance, investing, and estate planning.
